

Why should Microsoft fans want (even help!) Linux to succeed

By L

Created 21/10/2008 - 5:35am

Submitted by L on Tuesday 21st of October 2008 05:35:51 AM

Imagine that your football team wins the championship the last years and it has completely crashed all competition. Would you be happy with the way your team played with no competition at all? It would surely play crappy, because it wouldn't need to try any harder. Now imagine that your opponents got stronger by bringing talented players, accomplished coaches and investing in their infrastructure (academies, training grounds, etc). Your team would be hard pressed and improved to keep ahead of its opponents.

The same thing happened with windows.

Having more than 90% market share for years, they got slower, more bloated and less innovative.

Rest of article [1]

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/31506>

Links:

[1] <http://yatsite.blogspot.com/2008/10/why-should-microsoft-fans-want-even.html>