

Using a Different Office

By adriantry

Created 04/11/2008 - 11:51am

Submitted by adriantry on Tuesday 4th of November 2008 11:51:32 AM Filed under Just talk [1]

A new office

In February we purchased our first home. It's beautiful, with wooden cathedral ceilings and slate floors. The yards are filled with lush gardens overlooked by a spacious undercover outdoor area. A generous extension houses a spacious living area with a fireplace.

But it's small. Much smaller than we're used to. And much smaller than our previous home which we called "The Mansion". It is the first house I have lived in for a very long time that doesn't have a room I can call my office.

Because of the design of the house, our computer desks gave it a cluttered look. So we decided to get rid of the kids' computer desks and desktop computers, and replaced them with Asus eeePC's. They love them. I bought one for myself as well.

But I hadn't come up with a real solution for a lack of an office [2]

Just talk

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/31897>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/68>

[2] <http://www.adriantry.com/using-a-different-office/>