Well, we have the server up and running on the new install. Some things still aren't functioning properly, but the site is up. We are still ironing out the glitches, so there will still be periods in which we are offline.

One of the things currently not functioning properly is the mail. So, if you sign up for an account, you probably will never get that mail. I'm will try to fix this issue later today.

There are a few other glitches, but I'm too tired to talk about it or work on it anymore. I'm going to take a break for a bit.
